37. Review - Pathways into work for Young People (AI 5)

(a) Helen Fuge, Purple Door representing the University of Portsmouth

Helen Fuge presented the paper submitted by Chris Martin who was the education liaison and outreach manager at the University of Portsmouth who worked with schools and colleges. Helen explained that her own role at Purple Door was to upskill students and get them into graduate employment.

Chris Martin's report explained the outreach work taking place with schools and colleges from Year 5 through to Year 13 with two core aims

- (1) Increasing applications from under-represented groups and higher education, in particular working with schools and colleges where there had traditionally been low progression into higher education; and

- (2) Enabling potential students to make informed decisions about whether the University of Portsmouth is right for them.

The university recruits a team of student ambassadors and mentors who support the work across all age ranges and there is a membership club for 11 to 16 year olds "Up for It Club" which has approximately 5,000 members. The club aims to raise aspirations, change perceptions and encourage pupils from all socio-economic backgrounds to see higher education as an attractive and accessible option. This is a free scheme and activities are run in the school holidays.

School Events

The report set out the number of events held each year:

- For primary schools with 1,500 children from Year 6 attending university tours, interviewing a student and attending a mini-lecture and mock graduation ceremony.
- For secondary schools there are over 150 events per annum offering campus tours, subject workshops, parents' events and talks and workshops in schools.
- Post-16 for A level/BTEC students there are over 250 events per annum entitled "Up for Your Future" with talks being given in schools and colleges and attending higher education and careers fairs around the country.
- The university has recently introduced a session specifically aimed at raising aspirations of students on level 3 vocational courses who are under-represented in higher education.
- Also there is an annual and very successful Year 12 conference series attended by over 500 local 17 year olds where academics from each faculty offer taster lectures to help young people make better informed decisions about their future subject choice.

The University of Portsmouth offers support to all students and graduates throughout their time at university and up to five years after graduation as well as Purple Door recruitment which ran volunteering opportunities. There is a jobs board with online vacancies, appointments can be booked with career advisers, there is a wide variety of events and workshops to support students and graduates ranging from mock interviews through to the graduate recruitment fair.

Local Labour Market Information

Purple Door Recruitment works with over 5000 organisations across the South East including both the commercial and third sector. The agency works pro-actively with these employers to place students and graduates into volunteer, part-time and graduate positions.

The Destinations of Leavers from Higher Education (DLHE) survey provides information on the activities of graduates after leaving higher education institutions. Data is collected through surveys carried out approximately six months after students leave their institution and relates to UK and EU domiciled students only. The information presented below shows a regional snapshot based on the 2012 survey.

As demonstrated through the statistics, there are still a number of graduates entering 'Non-Professional' occupations in the local region.

Helen reported that generally over the past 12 months the graduate labour market has become more buoyant with a noticeable increase of graduate level vacancies from local employers.

Purple Door works across the south east region with employers and Helen reported that part time vacancies go quickly and the part time opportunities in the city are fairly low. However, the voluntary sector is booming and approximately 300 students participate per year. The graduate market that they deal with covers an area from Southampton to Petersfield and employers were now coming to the university with job opportunities. Purple Door has a team of eight and they place approximately 250 graduates per year which represents a small proportion of the total number of graduates.

The trend was whilst previously many students tended to stay in the Portsmouth area they were now moving home to save money. Purple Door was considering widening the area from the south east region although its main focus had been to regenerate the south east. It was reported that the careers advice and information generated a huge footfall with approximately 3,000 visitors per annum. Students were trying to do more than just study for their degree.

In response to members' questions the following information was given:

- Purple Door was assessed on the roles it found for graduates so those employers trying to fill vacancies rather than provide graduate jobs were signposted to other recruiters. The policy was that a graduate level job should be in the range of £18-21,000.
- Whilst some employers would incorporate further training and qualifications for the graduate in their jobs (in specific areas such as marketing, accountancy law etc) other organisations were willing to offer cross-training on IT where there were still shortages of suitable candidates.

Further information would be sought from the Destination Officer for panel regarding students from other universities coming back to Portsmouth to live and it was noted that Purple Door's careers advice was open to any graduate of any university.

The chair thanked Helen Fuge for her interesting presentation and she left the meeting at this point.

(b) Clare Ansell, Director of Operations, Motiv8

Motiv8 is an independent charity in the Portsmouth Hampshire area working with those young people identified as being at risk and in need of support. Core activities centre on work in the community, delivery in schools and supporting young people into employment. They have teams based in the community.

ITYSS

In Portsmouth Motiv8 deliver the Integrated Targeted Youth Support Service (ITYSS) on behalf of PCC in the north of the city based at Paulsgrove Community Centre working with 9-19 year olds. Motiv8 identified young people who are in need of assistance and intervention before they reach crisis point and send information to the headteachers to work collaboratively. There were one to one support sessions with dedicated key workers who used a common assessment framework plan (CAF) and involvement of the families. The work is preventative to support young clients who without support might go on to achieve poor outcomes e.g. becoming NEETS¹ , offending, getting involved in substance misuse or becoing teenage parents.

Intensive Support Programme

This was funded by the Home Office via the Office of Police and Crime Commissioner. The aim is to work intensively with two young people (up to 10 hours each per week) who are in the criminal justice system and have been identified as being at high risk of re-offending to challenge the behaviour of the young person and give them encouragement and offer practical help. Consideration is given to education, training and employment options.

Employment & Volunteering Opportunities

At the moment there are 38 active volunteers, 50% were in the 17-25 age range. The expectation is that this would help lead to paid employment, including at Motiv8 itself (over a quarter of Motiv8's paid workforce had previously volunteered there).

The welfare reform changes had had the effect of increasing numbers wanting to volunteer and Motiv8 were unable to meet the demand due to the level of supervision and time needed.

Motiv8 is committed to providing an apprenticeship scheme and over the last three years they had six apprenticeships. There was encouragement when tendering for new contracts there should be inclusion of apprenticeship opportunities to be written into the bids. It was noted that the take-up of apprenticeships by looked after children was lower as it impacted on their benefits where they were living independently.

Social Enterprise

The bike recycling scheme at Gosport had opened in October 2012. They received donated bikes which were worked on for resale, service and repairs and there was training given in bike maintenance. The scheme included four young people on work experience (referrals from PRU² units) and 16 volunteers had been involved this year. The scheme would be replicated at the Portsmouth voluntary hub centre in Winston Churchill Avenue for which a tender had recently been won by Motiv8 (to operate PCC's community cycle project funded for 18 months by the Local Sustainable Transport Fund). It would provide sales, services and repairs, bike doctor sessions, workshops, volunteer and work placements, guided and targeted rides.

Links to Local Businesses

¹ Not in Education, Employment or Training

² PRU = Pupil Reference Unit

This had included the 'seeing is believing' Business in the Community event publicising what Motiv8 offer and asking for pledges of in-kind support. This had led to local company Carillion running interview and recruitment days to give good practice for young people. Motiv8 were delivering phase 2 provision in Hampshire (PCMI provide this for Portsmouth) and they operate the employment drop-in service for Hampshire County Council.

The following information was then given in response to members' questions:

- Many of their clients were engaged with the local job centres and there was close liaison; Motiv8 were able to give more practical hands-on support in some cases.
- There has been a gap identified for post 16 options for young people with additional social, emotional and behavioural needs. An example was given of work being developed with Highbury College and Harbour Schools to look at this type of gap in provision.
- The bicycle recycling scheme would liaise with the Portsmouth Cycle Forum and also offered work with schools on Bike Doctor sessions. It offered three levels of the Velotech awards and there had been some successful placements at local bicycle companies such as Halfords through this. Another success story had been of Motiv8's apprentice attending the Goodwood Orbital event.
- Motiv8 were keen to see social inclusion within major contracts which would be of interest to the city council. Through the Wessex resettlement consortium there had been opportunities to place young people in the construction industry through their partners at Construction Youth Trust.

The chair thanked Clare for her useful and interesting presentation and would take forward outside of this scrutiny review the information given regarding refuse collection contractors looking in on vulnerable older people.

(c) The Written Evidence

The CIPD's research report entitled "Employers are from Mars, Young People are from Venus" addressing the young people/jobs mismatch was welcomed by the panel and further information would be circulated on behalf of the chair.

38. Dates of next meetings (AI 6)

The next formal meeting will be held on 5 December to look at evidence from educational representatives. The apprenticeship event on 23 January 2014 was noted and members would be asked to go independently to this. The chair hoped to finalise a report in February so asked that members also hold 30 January as a provisional date for another meeting.

The meeting concluded at 7.00 pm.
