Charge points will be installed in such a manner as to not hinder their usage by those that are differently abled. The methods used for Phase 1 of the On-Street Residential Charge point Scheme (installed in early 2019) would be replicated if bollards are deemed necessary in any PCC owned car parks. That is to ensure that any charging bollards that are installed on or near to any footways or pedestrian walkways do not reduce the width of available space, as they will be installed at an angle and at an equal distance from the carriageway as the accompanying power source is from the back of the footway or pedestrian walkway, this will ensure that overall space on the footway is not reduced - leaving adequate space for wheelchairs, mobility scooters and buggies. The bollards used in the On-Street Residential Charge point Scheme have a reflective strip for increased visibility and are designed to replicate the size, shape and aesthetic of existing bollards in order to keep consistency with other street furniture, which aids those with limited visibility. This approach would be duplicated in any PCC owned car park if deemed necessary for the Off-Street scheme. Additionally, we have learned from feedback from the existing off-street trial that if a charge point is at the bonnet end of a vehicle it makes charging an electric vehicle a challenge for those that use a wheelchair or scooter to manoeuvre. We will ensure that each charge point proposed and existing are reviewed to ensure that appropriate mitigation is in place if the charge point is at the bonnet end of the vehicle, such as hashing around the charging bay to allow for the adequate space needed.

How are you going to measure/check the impact of your proposal?

Ongoing stakeholder communications with those involved with disability forums and parking colleagues who manage the car parks that the charge points will be situated.
