

Community Safety Plan 2021 - 2022

Foreword

We are pleased to present Portsmouth's Community Safety Plan for 2021-22. The council, police, fire service, health services and probation services have a collective responsibility to identify community safety priorities for the city and put in place a plan to address them. We encourage our partners to share this document widely within their individual organisations. The strategic assessment for 2019/20 identifies the priorities and this plan sets out how the priorities will be addressed. All community safety partners and all council departments are responsible for making sure the actions in the plan are delivered. This plan supports our City Vision 2040 and aims to make sure all our residents, communities feel safe, feel like they belong, and can thrive. The plan will also inform the next Health and Wellbeing Strategy.

Over the past 20 years, the community safety partnership has regularly analysed a wide range of data in order to understand what drives crime in the city, taking what is now referred to as a 'public health approach' by refining research and focusing in on the detail as well as long term trends. Plans based on the findings from this analysis have been updated and published every few years in line with statutory requirements. Crime levels and rates have come down over the past 10 years, despite changes in the way crime is recorded by police. Violence - especially most serious violence - has remained relatively stable over the past two years, although, like all densely populated urban centres, Portsmouth continues will always have challenges. Overall, it is a safe city.

However, there are known risk factors including, domestic violence and abuse, poor mental health and substance misuse that often result in young people and adults becoming involved in crime and anti-social behaviour. It is important to raise awareness that community safety issues touch so many areas of our work, and to join up the plans and activities of a wide range of council services alongside our partners to reduce duplication and maximise efficiency. This collaborative approach can reduce costs and increases opportunities for early intervention, crime prevention and working together in active partnership to drive down crime and anti-social behaviour in the city.

As the approach to analysis has developed over the years, there has been increasing pressure on public sector resources. This has necessitated an evolving, more mainstream approach to tackling the 'wicked issues'¹ described above, often challenging our established systems and changing the way we deliver services to better reflect the needs of those who are vulnerable to poor outcomes.

The 1996 Morgan Report put forward the idea that crime reduction was not solely the responsibility of the police. Nearly twenty-five years on it feels as though this is understood and embraced by all partners working to improve community safety in Portsmouth.

We know the Covid 19 virus has had a huge impact on our city and on our work, and has affected different groups of people in very different ways. This plan will be refreshed in line with other key strategies in the city once the pandemic is over. The Health and Wellbeing Board approved this plan on (insert date).

A. Introduction

As we have discovered more and more about what drives crime, city leaders across public services have improved their focus on key priorities that will improve the lives of Portsmouth residents, the local economy and environment. The understanding of the relationship between 'people' and 'place' continues to evolve; the more we know, the clearer it is that the underlying causes of a significant proportion of crime are the same as the underlying causes of poor health, poor educational attainment and worklessness. It is appropriate therefore that Portsmouth's community safety partnership merged with the Health and Wellbeing Board in June 2019 to enable a more efficient leadership structure. The board brings together the human and financial resources of businesses, the voluntary and public services - in one place - to jointly tackle shared priorities.

The 'Safer Portsmouth Partnership' is now an integral part of this multi-agency group, that is responsible for health and care in Portsmouth as well as community safety, and also supports the development of the Children's Trust Plan. Children and adult safeguarding partnerships, local economic partnerships sit alongside the Health and Wellbeing Board to create a comprehensive governance framework for the city supported by a range working groups that co-ordinate, deliver and monitor improvement and development activity.

Service delivery has also changed since the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 required 'responsible authorities' to work together, moving from individual specialist services established to tackle newly identified priorities, such as domestic abuse, through to larger co-located multi-agency community safety teams and departments. As public sector resources dwindled, many of these specialist services were pulled back into mainstream provision. The aim is for community safety to be 'business as usual' for all council services², joining together with other key partners to reduce crime and improve wellbeing.

The legal requirements relating to strategic analysis and planning remain in place so the link between priorities identified in the local community safety strategic assessment and those in this plan should be clear. This will inform the development of the Health and Wellbeing Strategy for Portsmouth once business returns to normal, hopefully by the summer of 2021.

Plans already in place

In June 2019, in response to a surge in serious violence and knife crime in the UK's urban centres, the Home Office provided funding to establish Violence Reduction Units in key areas of the UK via local Police and Crime Commissioners. Portsmouth used the funding to embed the work on violence reduction within existing partnerships and strategies rather than create a competing structure without the same deep foundations.³ The Violence Reduction Unit Response Strategy was approved in January 2020.

² Section 17 Crime & Disorder Act 1998 (as amended)

³ Violence Reduction Unit Response Strategy

The Domestic Abuse Strategy was refreshed in 2019 and approved in January 2020. This was followed by the Children's Trust Plan 2020-2023 in June 2020. This plan is supported by detailed related strategies; Safeguarding Children Strategy, Youth Justice Plan, Exploitation Action Planning and Children's Safeguarding Strategy and the Education Strategy. Together these three plans set out the city's approach to early intervention and prevention.

So, rather than duplicating effort, this short community safety plan aims to demonstrate the connectedness of these existing strategies and their collective capacity to deliver improvements for the city in relation to the identified priorities; violence, and substance misuse and early intervention and prevention. The Venn diagram at Appendix 1 explains the co-dependant relationship between priorities.

B. Three community safety priorities

The impact of the pandemic on staff capacity means the community safety strategic assessment has been developed over a longer period of time; from late 2019 until September 2020 when it was approved by the Health and Wellbeing Board.

The priorities for 2020-2023 are:

- A. Tackling violent crime; continuing to focus on domestic abuse, serious violence and knife-enabled violence
- B. Tackling drug misuse in the city
- C. Early identification of an interventions with children and young people at risk of exploitation or abuse, of misusing substances and of perpetrating anti-social behaviour or offending

These priorities are based directly on the findings from the strategic assessment and community consultation as well as local research and analysis undertaken over the past three years⁴.

D. Monitoring impact and using measures

Monitoring regimes are already in place for serious violence, domestic abuse, and early intervention.

There will be no numerical targets - Portsmouth's Community Safety Analyst is now part of the central public health intelligence team and will focus on monitoring police and related data sets quarterly using Statistical Process Control (SPC) Charts that plot performance data over time. This method suggests that variation between the upper and lower control limits (see below) is to be expected and should not cause concern unless other signals are present.

The focus is on spotting and understanding the reason for unusual patterns and responding appropriately. The signals that indicate a need for further investigation or action are:

- a point that falls outside the parameters determined by the upper and lower control limits
- trends of six or more consecutive data points in one direction
- a run of 8 data points on the same side
- a clear run of 14 or more alternating points either side of the centre line
- 3 points in succession close to a control limit line.

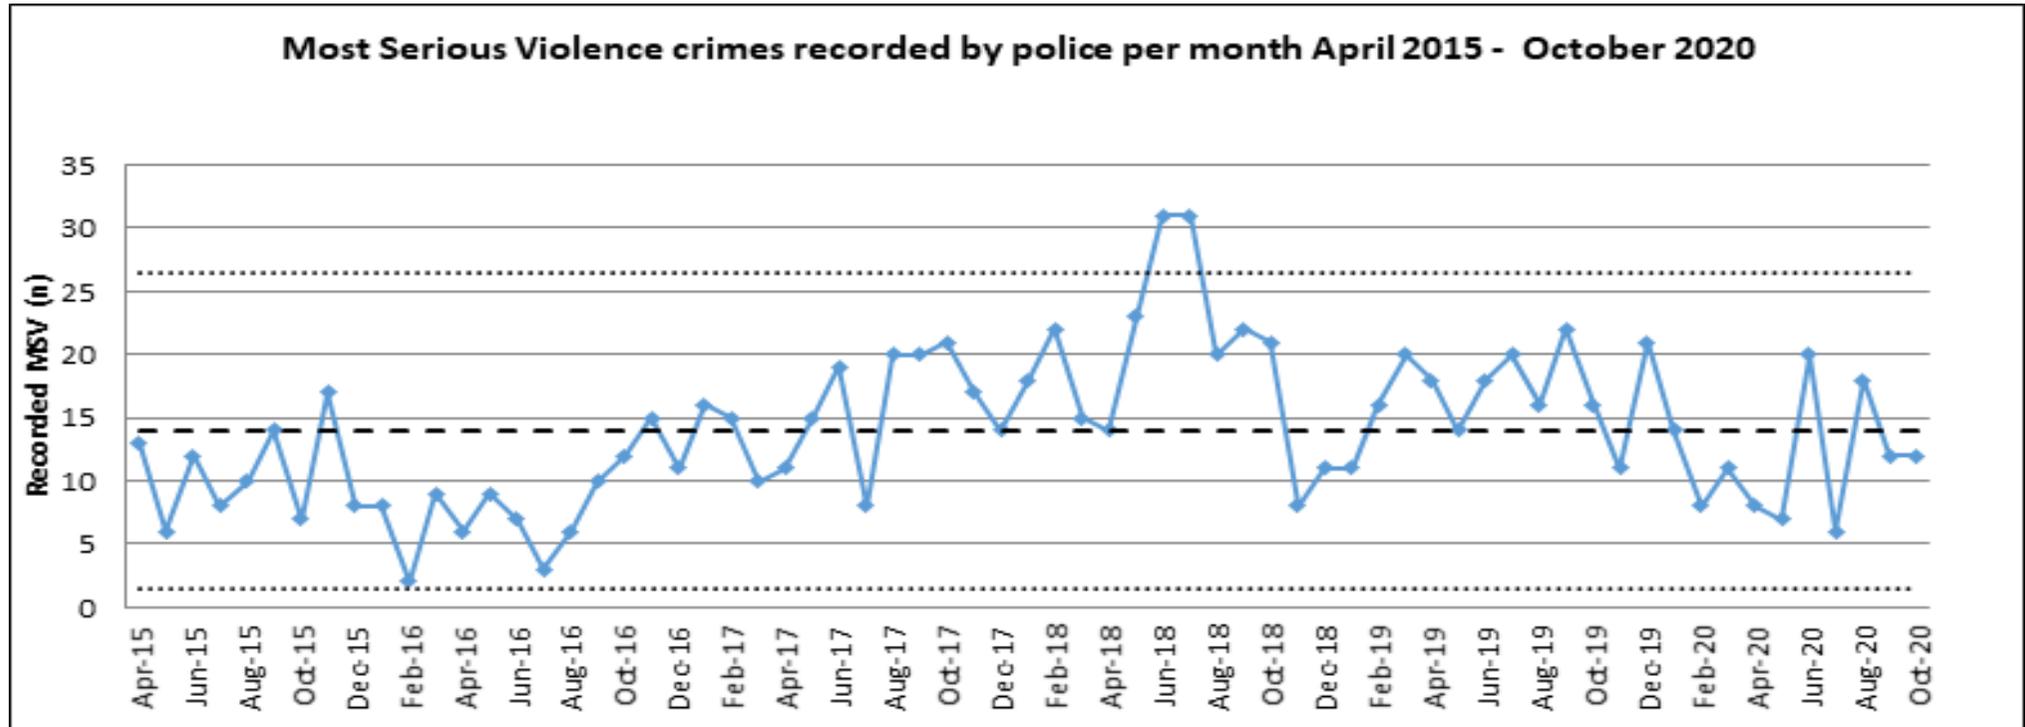

Figure 1 above shows significant increases in most serious violence recorded by police in response to which detailed analysis was commissioned in 2016 and which subsequently informed the Serious Violence Problem Profile.

This approach tracks key measures, but will also take into account the voice of service users, the experience of service providers, alongside financial considerations, and statistical analysis.

Measures using the following criteria will be developed:

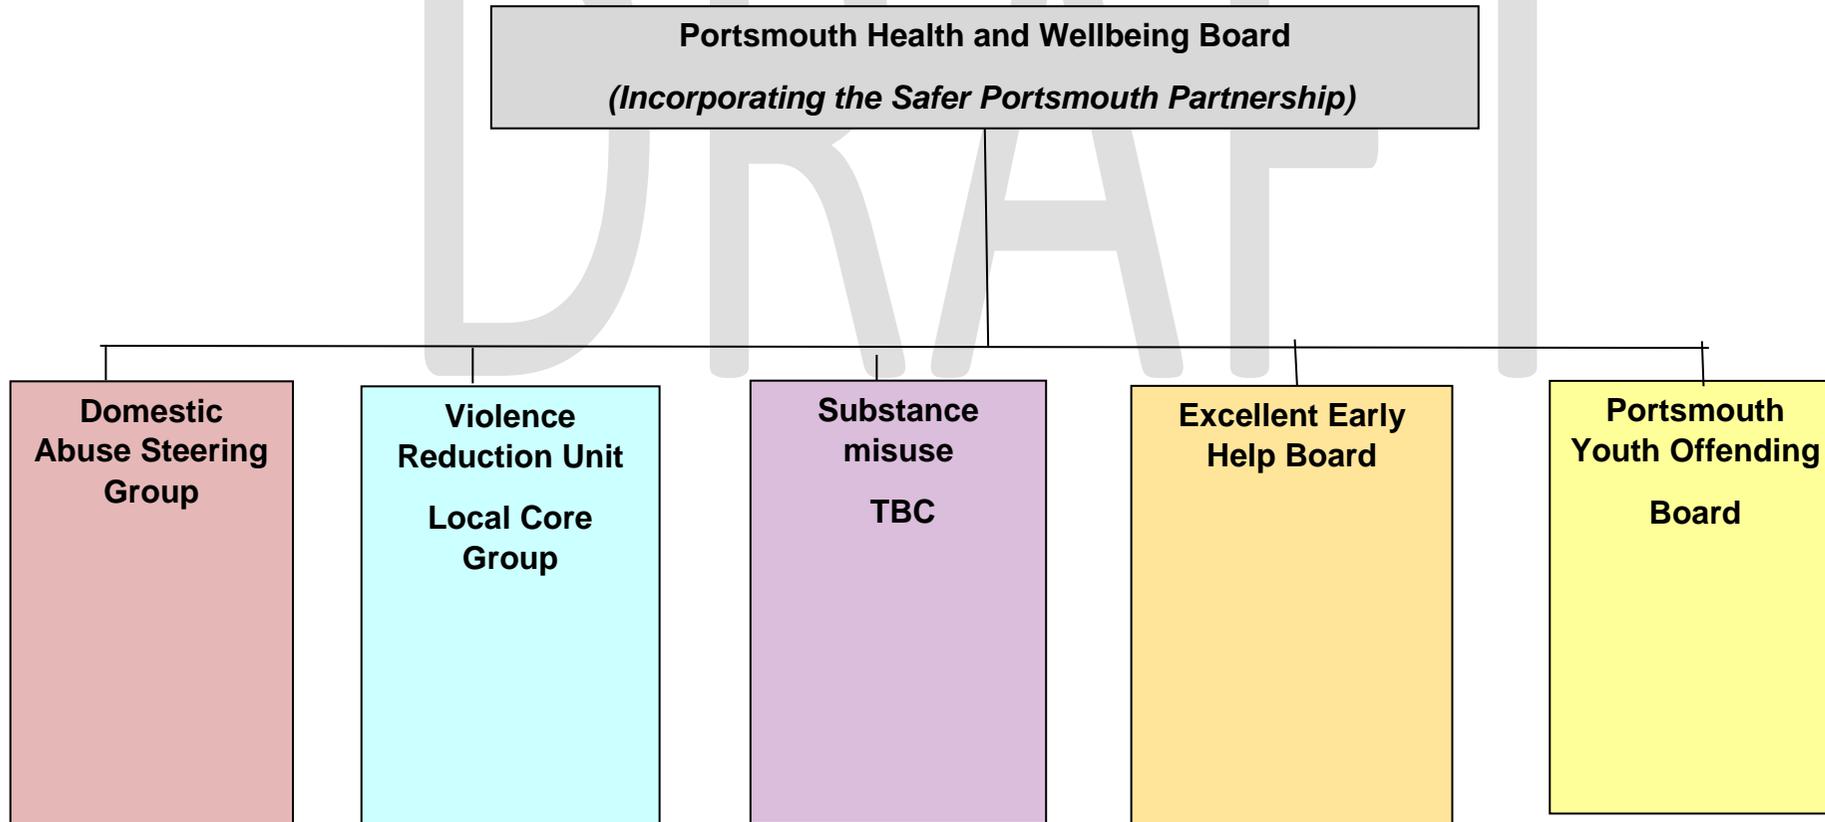

- Are used by leaders to take effective action on the system
- Show variation over time so we can see if we are improving or getting worse

- Help PR actioners to learn, understand and improve the whole system

E. Governance

The Health and Wellbeing Board is responsible for delivering the statutory duties of the Safer Portsmouth Partnership. The dynamic sub-groups set out in the diagram below will monitor progress and an annual progress report will be provided to the Health and Wellbeing Board. Other groups may be established on a task and finish basis as necessary.

Support services are provided by the council's Strategy Unit and Public Health Intelligence Teams.
